A suit for divorce was be-gun by the husband in last October, but before it had gone far he became dissatisfied with his action, and had the proceedings quashed. Miller's jealousy was again aroused by fresh stories from the person above mea-flowed, and he offered his wife $1,000 to separate from him and relinquish her right of dower in his estate. POLITICAL NOTES.

The Philadelphia Inquirer has an entirely new application for the word "parrieldal." It says Senator Scott, in voting against inflation, "aimed a parricidal blow at the people who have loaded him with honors." To refuse to split the new teneent piece in two and make twenty cents of it then is to kill your father. This is getting serious.

The new Capitol Commissioners on Saturday manimously appointed James W. Eaton, a leading builder in Albany, to the position of Superintendent of the new Capitol, made vacant by the last Legislature. Gov. Dix has not yet confirmed the appointment, in-tending. The Albany Journal sars, to give the matter a day or two of careful consideration.

South Carolina justice find a curious and significant comment in the remark of a judge in Barnwell the other day. In sentencing some criminals to the Penitentiary for four years, he added : " That is, if you are permitted to stay there. I meet persons on the street a few weeks after I have sent them to the Peni-lentiary." The judge was evidently getting discour-aged.

"In obedience to a manifest public sentiment, and at the request of many men of all parties," a call for a Reform State Convention has been issued by several members of the Michigan Legislature. It will meet at Lansing on Aug. 9, "to take such steps as may be deemed avisable to secure the organization of a party on a basis of live issues, and for the restoration of purity of statesmanship to the high places of our State and National Government."

The Conservatives of Petersburg, Va., appear to have become tired at last of the unprofitable business of biting off their own noses. Instead of bewaiting with criminal inactivity the action of Gov. Kemper in vetoing the charter giving them a government by commissions, they have followed THE TRIBUNE'S advice, and by taking hold vigorously in the political contest just ended, have overthrown their corrupt rulers by a handsome majority of 400 votes. They doubtless see now that the way to make politics cleaner is for honest men to assert their supremacy in controlling them instead of standing sloof and grouning over a condition of corrup-tion which exists only through their mistaken sense of

The Rhode Island Legislature has adjourned till June 9, when it will come together again to elect a United States Senator. The Providence Press says there are eight candidates in the field, and thus speaks of the prospects of the more prominent ones: "Some deemed strong just after the State election have developed weak, others deemed weak have gathered strength. Dixon stock has not advanced; Burnside's has; Howard still declines to be a candidate; Barstow's friends are increasing; Sucffield is nearly at zero; and our ' unknown integer' is still the balance of power. We cannot yet spell his name. The prospect now is that a long and tedious contest, after the example recently set by Massa-chusetts, will precede the final vote."

Mr. A. C. Hesing and Gen. Lieb, prominent German editors and politicians of Chicago, held a con-ference in that city on Saturday with several editors of nfluential Democratic journals of the State, when the practicability of reorganizing the Democratic party was liscussed. Mr. Hesing advocated a reorganization of the party, because he believed it was the only one which could keep down the puritanical element and guarantee the peculiar freedom the Germans demand. He had no faith in an Independent party, and promised, if the Democratic party were placed upon its feet again, to give it all the German votes, feeling confident that it give it all the German voice, seeing commons that would carry the Saate in the next general election by 35,000 majority. Some of the editors favored the proposition, and others did not. Some of them expressed the opinion that any attempt to reorganize the Democracy would only help the Republican party, by preventing the union of all the elements of the opposition. They finally decided to await the action of the Independent Convention to be held at Springfleid June 19.

The situation in Maine, so far as the U. S. Senatorship is concerned, is not so satisfactory to Senator Hamlin as his friends would have the public think. A few days ago it was given out that all of his Republican rivals had withdrawn from the race, and that conseuently Mr. Hamlin would be returned without opposition. The Portland Advertiser declares this staten false, and displays considerable hostility toward the authors of it. It says it was understood six years ago that Mr. Hamlin would not be a candidate for reelection, and now that he has failed to keep that implied promise, many of his former supporters consider that has violated personal faith, and will oppose him. The Advertiser thinks his control of the patronage at his disposal makes him at present the strongest candidate, and thus speaks of his prospects before the Legislature: "Mr. Hamlin will probably have the largest vote at the first ballot, as Mr. Dawes had in Massachuvote at the first ballot, as Mr. Dawes had in Massachusetts. But Mr. Dawes was not elected, and Mr. Hamin's full strength will be developed in the outset. Against him will be Mr. Drummond and Mr. Perham certainty, Mr. Washburn in all probability, scattering votes for other Republicans, and Mr. Bradbury or Mr. Pillsbury as the Democratic candidate. It is not impossible that the Democratic candidate. It is not impossible that they do, we hope they will use it effectively, instead of throwing it away like their Massachusetts brothren."

visions of the original deed trans. Tring the island to Gen. di Cesnola is continuing his researches in Cyprus. In the neighborhood of Salamis he has found several sculptures of the Graco-Roman period. In course of his labors the General has found some interesting insertibed objects, and a cave containing a large quantity of petrified human bones. The Hon. A. H. Stephens, who said some time ago that he was "going home to die," is evidently determined to devote his last energies to his old enemy, Mr. B. H. Hill. He recently published another letter, more than six long columns in length, which he concluded in this way: "I am not yet half through with Mr. Hill. If life and strength be spared."

Poor Rochefort! He had the foolhardiness to ignore Chicago, and now see what he gets for it. The Tribune of that city thus squeiches him: "A French edition of George Francis Train can scarcely farnish de-strable companionship. And a man making almost the tour of the world who can pass through Chicago with-out stopping over must be of small intellectual caliber." And just as likely as not the man didn't know what a risk he was running. Somebody ought to have warned him.

DE. DE WITT'S LIFE WORK.

A MEMORIAL SERMON BY THE REV. DR. VERMILYE. In accordance with the resolution passed by the Consistory of the Dutch Reformed Churches of this city, the Rev. Dr. Vermilye preached a funeral sermon last evening on the character and services of the late Rev. Dr. Thomas De Witt, at the Dutch Reformed Church, at Fifth-ave. and Forty-eighth-st. The pulpit was covered with black cloth, and a handsome basket of flowers stood on the communion table. The opening services were conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Ludlow. Dr. Vermilye took for his text : " Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."-Psaims, exvi., 15.

The first point, said he, is that saints, as well as other persons, must die. The stern decree has passed; "Dust thou art, and to dust thou shalt return," and the most holy man cannot escape. We know of only two men who have escaped death, Enoch and Elijah, and these were taken up to heaven for special reasons. At Christ's second coming those who remain will be caught up to heaven, but this will not happen until the end of the world. Flesh and blood cannot enter into the kingdom of God. Sometimes we hear murmurs from friends, whe God has removed some one near and dear to them, and they exclaim, "Why could He not have taken some one else!" But He knows what is best, and His actions must not be questioned. The death of the saint is followed by no second death. He has fallen asleep in Jesus. Death is a conquered foe, and our Savior guards His followers,

But the subject for this evening is the Rev. Thoma De Witt, our senior paster, whose death took place lately. He was born in New-York State on Sept. 13, 1791. His ancestors came over from Holland in 1655. Dr. De Witt in his youth learned the Dutch language enough to speak it in conversation and to preach in it from the pulpit. He was rather sedate and serious in his early days, and his father determined to give him the advantage of a collegiate education, and among his classmates at college were De Witt Clinton and Abraham Van He was graduated in 1908, when he was 17 years of age. Soon after he was graduated he made a public profession of religion and chose the ministry as his work. After a year's theological study at New-Brunswick, he beame a licensed preacher, and in 1812 was ordained, he being then only 21 years of age. In 1826 he was called to the Collegiate Church this city, where he remained 47 years, in this city, where he remained 47 years, or until his death, after a service of sixty-two years in the ministry. In October 1826 he married, and his wife remained to comfort him until about seven months before his own death. His only son died young, but his two daugaiers were left to him. In appearance he was medest, unassuming, grave and diguided in his deportment, and altogether was "a loveanie man." He would forget the most common things and yet stand up before an audience without notes and repeat chapter, verse, and deliver an excellent discourse. His discourses were sometimes doctrinal, but he loved to enforce the truths of the New Testament. His preaching was always evangelical, and he loved to speak of the love of the Savior for poor sinners. It is not easy to describe his manner. His voice was clear and round; he had no artificial mode of conversation; his gestures were often very strange, and when impassioned he would turn his back to the audience, raise his arms ever his head, and make contortions that would ons seconds. In the years he was connected with the Historical Society as President and Vice-President, and with other societies in this city, and was present at the formation of the Evangelical Alliance in London. His old age was serene and peaceful, the chords that bound must be earth were gently loosened one after the other, and finally he was himself called away. To me his departure cans a Friendship of 40 years, during 35 of which was navy hear collegates in the Church. We shall not dead, our rather as one who as risen. Let it be our care to fit ourselves for death so that we may then join him above, singing praises around the throne of God.

REVENUE REFORM IN THE SENATE.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sin: On Tuesday the Senate will take up the Revenue Reform bill that passed the House without apposition two weeks ago. Last Tuesday the Finance Committee, to whom the bill was referred in the Senate, gave the merchants a hearing, the Chamber of Commerce of this city and the Boards of Trade of Philadelphia, and Baltimore being repreand on Friday the bill was re-Two important [amendments, besides sented. others not important, have been made by Senate Committee. One provides for the enforced production of books and papers, not, however, by seizing them, but by ordering the accused to produce them under penalty of having the allegations against him taken as confessed, unless his failure to comply with the order shall be explained to the satisfaction of the court. The Ways and Means Committee of the House originally and by a divided vote, reported such a provision, but the House struck it out by a vote of 97 Yeas to 43 Nays. As the law now stands, the judge says to the marshal Seize that merchant's books and papers, that I may find out whether he is guilty or not." amendment of the Finance Committee, the judge could say to the merchant: "Bring your books and papers that I may find out whether you are guilty or not, and if you do not bring them I shall find you guilty any-Substantially there is no difference between these two propositions, and it is to be hoped that the Senate will do as the House did, namely, put its foot on

The other amendment is one of equally grave importance, simply because it may create debate, and thus cause delay. There may be a sense of fairness in having cause delay. There may be a sense of fairness in naving the same bill that takes away the perquisites of office by abolishing moieties also provide for an increase in fixed salaries. To that no merchant will object. But what he will object to and that in the most emphatic tones, igio make the passage of the House bill contingent upon the passage of this amendment. There is no sympatic for Collectors, Surveyors, and Naval Officers, who are not to be so well paid hereafter, nor is there any widespread alarm test the fortunes lost to them by suspending confiscations shall not be instantaneously repaired, at least in some measure, by enlarged pay. Those who have made anything by the seizure laws have made enough to satisfy them, at least until another session of Congress, and from those who have made nothing nothing is to be taken away, still be a source of income to officials. Whatever may be the necessity for the amendment, it should not be allowed to embarrass the consideration of the House bill. Rather let it be voted down and then take its chance on its own merits as a separate bill. No amendment, of whatever apparent necesity, should be suffered to block the passage of the bill as it came from the House. The merchants all along the const await with feverish auxiety the action of the Senate on Tuesday, and they most carnestly implore the Senate to give them what they ask, just as the House has done, untrammeled by the dead weight of an incongruous amendment. the same bill that takes away the perquisites of office New-York, May 31, 1874.

A THRIFTY SUGGESTION. To the Editor of The Tribune.

SIR: Why is it that only half a dozen of the vehicles in the Decoration Day processions bear business advertisements, when we might cover every one of them with announcements of patent soap, Mieratus, sewing machines, theaters, and story-papers, besides attaching small posters to the backs of the individuals on foot! It is a sname that so much good advertising space should be wasted, which if properly farmed out would create a fund sufficient not only to defray all the expenses of annually decorating the graves of our fallen heroes, but to build an ample asylum for their orphans and make comfortable the oid age of their widows. Nor is this the only consideration—there is an æsthetic side to the question as well. If we should cover all the carriages and banners with the titles of patient medicines and other partiotic articles, it would give the procession a unity of design which now it seems to lack. At present a foreign spectator might be puzzied to guess whether the affair was a speculation by the living or a tribute to the dead. Of course the matter will regulate likelf in time, and ultimately we shall have business cards nearly printed on all the little flags that are planted on the soldiers' graves; but why not oring the system to perfection at once, and secure, as soon as possible, a comfortable provision for the widow and the orphan!

Heath finally drew his pistel and shot the secondrel in the head, and then fell insensible from his injuries. As the train approached Niles he recovered sufficiently to call for help, but was unable to rise. The robber lived only a few seconds after he was taken from the car.

A NOTABLE EVENT.—The public are invited to the inspection to-day of one of the most elegant salesrooms; anywhere in the country. The Wilson Sewing Machine Company has just completed the fitting-up and furnishing, in the most elaborate style, of their new salesroom and offices in the marble block, Nos. 32 and 329 Broadway, which will be opened to the public to-day, and should receive a more than ordinary share of the popular attention. It is not possible to overstate the tasteful elegance which distinguishes the arrangement and decoration of this establishment. It is beautifully frescoed, the salesroom and offices are richly carpeted, the furniture is of the finest description, and in all respects it is a model business place. It will be illuminated in the evening.

Astonishing .- Few persons are aware of the ASIONISHING.—Few persons are aware of the time, talent, and expense necessary to develop and perfect an invention. The new Wheeler & Wilson No. 6 Sewing Machine advertised in our columns has already cost that Company over $200,000, and to bring it well before the public will require $200,000 more. It costs as much to design, construct, and introduce a perfect Sewing Machine as to launch a first-class ocean steamship.—[Mail.
